CDFI Story: Angelic's Kitchen and Catering, Charlottesville, VA

Angelic's Kitchen and Catering is a Southern flavor soul food restaurant. They first opened in 2014 selling fried fish in their exclusive breeding, along with street corn, crispy wings, fried chicken, and more. Their business grew by selling at festivals and they purchased a food trailer and began selling regularly at Pantops in Charlottesville. Due to continual growth, they decided to open a restaurant in the Dairy Market in April of 2019. Since then, they have been developing a new menu, figuring out spacing and equipment, and interviewing and hiring staff.

Angelic's Kitchen has grown to now have seven part-time employees and one full-time employee. Angelic is incredibly proud to now be making more money through Angelic's Kitchen than through her full-time job. She explains that she "is incredibly grateful to CIC for their continuing to support us, through their loan, mentoring, and connections, we have made Angelic's Kitchen into a full-time family business."
